Dreamsleeves By Coleen Murtagh Paratore

A powerful, radiant story about a girl who wears her dreams on her sleeve . . .

Aislinn is a girl with a lot of dreams, but due to family issues (caused mostly by her hard-drinking father), there's a lot standing in her way. While she should be enjoying the summer with friends, Aislinn is kept under lock and key and put in charge of her younger siblings. The average girl might give up, but not Aislinn. A person, she says, should write their dreams on their sleeve, putting them out there for the world to see, because there's a good chance that someone might come along and help you make your dream come true. What begins as a plea for help for her father to stop drinking, turns into a spark that has the whole community making their own dreamsleeves. At times heartbreaking, DREAMSLEEVES is also surprising, powerful, and luminously hopeful. Everyone will see a little of themselves in Aislinn, a girl with talent, ambition, and big dreams.

Editorial Review

From Booklist

Aislinn has big dreams for her summer vacation, like dating Mike Mancinello and going to her first boy-girl party. However, staying home and watching her four younger siblings and trying to avoid her drunk father teach her that dreams, both big and small, have to be fought for. She devises a plan to write her dreams on stickers and wear them on her shirtsleeves. They slowly start coming true, but can "dreamsleeves" help with her biggest dream of all? Paratore, author of the Wedding Planner's Daughter series, has created a story in which many can find hope. The 1960s setting adds an element of charm, but this is primarily about Aislinn and her father as she copes with the guilt and worry that plague many children whose parents struggle with alcoholism. Readers, especially those who may deal with similar problems, will find this a pertinent message wrapped in an emotional, realistic story. Grades 7-9. --Bethany Fort
