OVERVIEW

The home health aide can assist the homecare clinician during a medication assessment and drug regimen review. Aides interact with the patient in much different ways and oftentimes more frequently than the clinician, and as such, are in a position to influence the review by contributing observations that may impact the diagnosis.

This in-service provides home health aides an understanding of how their observations can help formulate the medication plan for the patient, and how they can help with the patient's adherence to the medications prescribed. Aides will learn to be the 'eyes and ears' of the other disciplines and report to the nurse or therapist issues that are observed or shared by the patient

LESSON OBJECTIVES

After completion of this program, the home health aide will be able to:

- Understand his or her responsibility with medication management
- Discuss the importance of reporting observations and patient discussions regarding medications
- Verbalize his or her understanding of relevant definitions and medication issues

Contents of this lesson:

- A clearly written fact sheet
- A 10-question post-test to measure understanding of the subject matter
- An answer sheet with a place for the instructor's comments and signature
- An illustrative, homecare-specific case study

- Suggested supplemental learning activities
